Out of its profound desire to maintain lasting peace and close friendship between the two countries, the Chinese Government proposed that the two countries conclude a Treaty of Peace and Friendship. Prime Minister Koirala appreciated this proposal of the Chinese Government.

In order to further strengthen the economic co-operation between the two countries so as to promote the prosperity of the two countries and the well-being of their peoples, the Governments of the two countries, in accordance with the principles of non-interference in each other's internal affairs and equality and mutual benefit, signed the "Agreement Between the Government of the People's Republic of China and His Majesty's Government of Nepal on Economic Aid". According to this Agreement the Chinese Government, at the request of His Majesty's Government of Nepal agreed to give the latter, within a period of three years, a free grant of aid of a total value of 100,000,000 (one hundred million) Indian Rupees, without any political conditions attached. This aid does not include the remaining 40,000,000 (forty million) Indian Rupees, provided under the Agreement between China and Nepal on Economic Aid of 1956, which has not yet been used by His Majesty's Government of Nepal.

China and Nepal are two ancient and yet young countries. There exists between our two peoples a profound traditional friendship of long standing. Since the formal establishment of diplomatic relations between our two countries, we have not only restored our once interrupted friendly ties, but, on the basis of the Five Principles of peaceful co-existence, founded new good neighborly relations. During the past several years, our two countries have consistently adhered to the Five Principles of peaceful co-existence and unremittingly upheld our friendship. Recently, as a result of the signing of the Sino-Nepalese agreement on the question of the boundary between the two countries and the Sino-Nepalese agreement on economic aid, our relations of friendly co-operation have entered into a new stage. It is certainly no exaggeration when we say that thanks to the joint efforts of our two governments and peoples, we have in our relations set an example of peaceful co-existence between countries of different social systems.

Both China and Nepal are faced with the arduous task of building up their own countries. We deeply realize that for us Asian and African countries, only when we have become independent economically, can we enrich the content of political independence and provide a complete guarantee for our independence. Up till now, both our countries are still backward economically and lack experience in construction. This objective reality determines that it is necessary for us to help each other and strengthen our co-operation in economic construction. Among the Asian and African countries, the development of national economy by any of them is in itself an encouragement and support to the others. It is in this spirit that the Chinese people have been strengthening economic co-operation with the other Asian and African countries. We sincerely hope that Nepal will rapidly become prosperous and strong. The prosperity and strength of Nepal, like those of other Asian and African countries, are a powerful support for our country, China. Both China and Nepal are peace-loving countries which dearly cherish independence and freedom. In their Constitution, the Chinese people solemnly proclaim in legal terms their desire-that "in international affairs, our firm and unswerving principle is to strive for the lofty aim of world peace and human progress". We note with pleasure that the movements in Asia, Africa and Latin America against imperialism and colonialism and for winning and safeguarding national independence are continuing to rise, and that new states are emerging one after another. As a result of the universal upsurge of the national independence movements and the persistent and untiring efforts of the peace-loving countries and peoples all over the world, a certain degree of relaxation has appeared in the international situation: The forces working for lasting world peace are so strong that even the Western countries, too, have had to put out certain signs of relaxation. It can be said that the prospects for winning world peace have never been as favorable as they are today. For this, the people of our two countries, as well as the other peace-loving people all over the world, feel gratified and encouraged. Nevertheless, we must also be aware that the aggressive imperialist circles, while making avowals for peace, are intensifying armament expansion and war preparations. They continue to organize military alliances, set up military bases and reinforce their military blocs. And they are trying their utmost to prevent agreement between the East and West on major international questions. What calls for particular attention is the fact that, fostered by aggressive imperialist circles, the militarist forces which launched the last World War are reviving and posing fresh threats to peace and security of the world. All this shows that the upholding of world peace is still an arduous task. It is necessary for all the peace-loving countries and people of the world to further strengthen their solidarity and go on making uninterrupted and still greater efforts.

His Majesty's Government of Nepal has repeatedly stated that it is determined to pursue an independent policy of neutrality, not to join any military bloc, and to carry out firmly the Five Principles of peaceful co-existence. The Chinese Government and people warmly welcome and fully support this policy of His Majesty's Government of Nepal. This policy is not only in the interest of Nepal's peaceful development and the smooth implementation of its Five-Year-Plan for economic construction, but also in the interest of the noble cause of preserving the solidarity of Asian countries and consolidating world peace. The Chinese Government and people are willing to strengthen further the co-operation with His Majesty's Government of Nepal and the Nepalese people in continuing to make concerted efforts for safeguarding world peace and promoting the solidarity and friendly co-operation among Asian and African countries.
